NAIL BEST DRESSED

A beach wedding is the one time you can get away with a suit and sneakers combo. If you are sure about the dress code, ask the groom what they're wearing and take your cue from the man of the moment. Remember – flip-flops are never an option, though leather sandals can work. Choose lighter shades: darker colours absorb sunlight, while lighter colours bounce it back, so you won't bake. You'll also want to wear breathable fabrics such as cotton or linen. If it gets too hot, take off the blazer – the tailored pants with the woven belt look smart enough to wear on their own.

CONQUER THE CASUAL AFFAIR

You don't always need a suit. Tailored separates, on the other hand, have the contrast between the crispness of a blazer and the softness of a chambray shirt adds a casual edge and complements the minimalist appeal of the navy chinos. Swap bowler ties for pocket squares. It's all you need.

» Got a wedding date? If you're the groom, you need to keep your look timeless; but when you're a guest, your focus is on standing out (for good reason), and celebrating like a professional. While the promise of an open bar and a merry band of single bridesmaids is enough to rhyso you that focus, don't neglect your outfit plans: skip the ill-fitting polyester suits, and use our next eight pages for inspiration. "Best-Dressed Guest" is the title you deserve to win.
